EVERGREEN MICHELIAS (Michelia doltsopa AKA Magnolia doltsopa) Evergreen Michelias are sometimes botanically classed as magnolias. They grow as upright, dense shrubs or can be pruned as small trees, usually getting 9-12 feet tall. The large, fragrant white flowers look like grandiflora flowers, except they are produced all up and down the branches, not just at the tips like other magnolias. Michelias are therefore literally covered in bloom in early summer.
